L. L. LANGSTROTH'S

PATENT MOVABLE COMB BEE HIVE!

PRONOUNCED THE BEST EVER YET introduced in this County or State. Any person buying a family right can have their bees transferred from an old box to a new one. In every instance in which this has been done the result has been entirely satisfactory, and the first take of honey has invariably paid all expenses, and frequently exceeded them. Proof of the superior merits of this invention will be found in the testimony of every man who has given it a trial, and among the number are the gentlemen named below, and their experience should induce every one interested in Bees to BUY A FAMILY RIGHT!

Henry C. Kirkpatrick, of Carroll township, took 106 pounds of surplus honey from two hives, which he sold at 35 cents per pound.

Adam Deitrich, of Carroll township, took from two hives 200 pounds of surplus honey.

James Kirkpatrick, of Chest township, took 60 pounds of surplus honey from one hive.

Jacob Kirkpatrick, of Chest township, obtained 72 pounds of surplus honey from one hive, worth not less than $21, and the right cost him only $5.

Peter Campbell from one hive obtained 36 pounds of surplus honey at one time.

☞ Quite a number of similar statements, authenticated by some of the best citizens of Cambria county, could be obtained in proof of the superior merits of Langstroth's Patent Movable Comb Bee Hive.

Reflections of a Reformed Culprit.

BY ANTONIO.

Oh! how long, how very long the hours do seem!
Yet, true, what heed should I pay time?
'Tis all the same—I wake, I sleep, I dream:
My chains serve well the tinkling church bell's chime.
Yes, here I, an old man, a poor man,
Sit in my drear, dark cell all day:
The breeze that moves the fibers and the light leaves fan,
Rejoicing, passes—pursues its destined way.
'Tis a hard, hard lot, yet why should I repine?
He whom the star-clad realms of bliss
And all this mighty world, Oh! man, of thine
Could not contain, bore more than this.
Oh! how I love, thro' my long, dark and dreariest hours,
To gaze upon the pale, sweet empress of the night,
(How upward, toward the Throne, my spirit towers!)
And study in HER loveliness God's living might.
To see, by times, the stars fall far, from up on high,
And glance across yon black, owl-ruined pile;
Just seen, a flash, a meteor glance—'tis by!
I fell like that years gone, a long, long while.
And now I scarce can hold with my poor, withered, boney hands
The meagre food, the scant subsistence of my ebbing life. [grand,
Ah! now I know 'tis true, that thought most
The world, well known, is saint to be or end for demon strife.
Yet, FATHER, if I so base can name Thee so,
Be pleased to grant me grace and love—
Treasures of priceless worth—that here below
Ripen to fullness souls born for above.
Here, while I mourn me, in this foul dungeon, I rejoice;
My soul and I hold converse, and I feel
That PEACE, with seraph gaze and angel voice,
Will yet, from this cold banishment, welcome me to weal.

THE SHERIFF'S DEPUTY.

The tyranny which one in power may exercise, if he chooses, and the strength of prejudice which often attains in a condition of society which does not equal ours in all the refinements of a very advanced state of civilization, give rise to the following incidents in the town of V——, Minnesota.

One day the Mayor of that place received among his batch of correspondence a very singularly worded note, which caused him to reflect profoundly for some quarter of an hour before filing it away in its place. The note ran as follows:

"Dear Sir:—With the profoundest respect for the administrative talents which God has seen fit to give you, and for a family name which was honorable until it became yours, I regret to say that circumstances render it necessary that I should put an end to your existence before the present month has elapsed. I, therefore, give you timely warning. Fly from this place. If possible place between it and you the mountains and the seas, for so only shall you escape

ONE WHO IS IN EARNEST."

Mayor Alvin paused long and thought earnestly after reading this note. There was reason why he should do so. He was not a popular Mayor. He had promised well when he entered upon his term of office, but not one of the promises had he kept. All the good people of the borough had come to detest him. All their hopes of redress of old grievances, inflicted under a former administration, had been frustrated. The new mayorality was worse than the old. The threshold of his office was surrounded by ruffians of the lowest grade. These, and these only, had free access to him. During his short tenure of office there was scarcely a crime that could be named that had not been committed and left unpunished. In short, Mayor Alvin's administration was a saturnalia of vice, a reign of terror.

He felt all this, probably, for the first time, in all poignacy, as he sat alone, brooding over the contents of the letter.—He felt that the cold shadows of retribution had fallen upon him, and that the grim-visaged pursuer from whom that shadow was cast was not far behind. But what particularly impressed him about the note was not so much the threat, as the sardonic courtesy of the language in which it was conveyed.

As he put the letter by, he took it for granted that the handwriting was disguised, and could furnish no clue to detection. It was a plain, round, perfectly business hand, but possessed of scarcely sufficient character to individualize it. Any good penman might imitate it without difficulty; but there was no apparent effort at disguise. It might have been the writer's natural hand, or it might have been an extremely elaborate and artistic mask.

Having filed the letter away, and prepared to leave the office, he almost succeeded in banishing it from his thoughts He was a constitutionally brave man, and he would have shrunk from the notion of cowardice, not so much from a sense of honor as from the possession of that bull dog courage which is indifferent to danger. Still, as he walked home in the murky November evening—and between his office and the house in which he lived, his path lay by a certain bleak waste of land, that a timid man would not have liked to traverse alone after dark—his thoughts returned, against his will, to the note, and to any special act that could have given occasion for it. The cloud was still upon his brow when he reached home, and his wife met him upon the threshold.

She was a magnificent woman; one of those beauties whose white complexions are in such keen contrast to their midnight eyes and hair, and heavy drooping lashes. Supple, nervous and compact, her small white hand, when she laid it upon her husband's, carried with it a magnetism that always thrilled him to the heart.

There was an atmosphere about this woman which precluded them, though occupying the position of Mayor and Mayoress, from having many visiting acquaintances, even among the class of people whose votes had elected Alvin. The ladies said: "The Mayor is a nice enough man, but then his wife—" and gave that shrug of the shoulders which means so much and says nothing.

She noticed his gloom, for the happiness of her life was stayed upon him, and not a word or gesture of his escaped her. She knew the hatred to which his unpopularity exposed him; and he never left her sight but what she dreaded that some of the less patient and peaceable of these might have instigated a tumult that had proved fatal to him. But she knew his disposition, and said nothing, only watched him.

It was the sixteenth day of the month—and consequently, but a fortnight remained until its close. Every morning and evening, regularly, Mayor Alvin walked as usual, to and from his office.—He had no additional precaution about his person, for in those days and in that section, it was only accident that found a man with a bowie knife or a revolver.—He had almost forgotten the circumstances of the threat. It only vaguely occurred to him at intervals.

At any rate he was not thinking of it as he walked home one night, and it was the evening of the 30th day of November. Now, if ever, he ought to have remembered that a warning hand had been outstretched to him from the darkness that surrounded the barren waste which he was at that moment traversing. Now, if ever, he ought to have recollected that beyond the solitary and mist-enveloped distance, lying between him and his home, everything that his heart held dear, was waiting—anxiously waiting—his arrival.

For he was a little late, and, as he bethought himself of this, there was a rustling in a clump of bushes immediately in front of him, and in the next instant he was himself confronted by a man of immense stature and corresponding girth.—So unexpected was the encounter that the intruder had one arm twisted in Mayor Alvin's neckcloth and the other uplifting a dagger about to strike, before the assaulted man had a clear comprehension of what had happened.

"I gave you a good warning," said the stranger between his set teeth. "You had plenty of time. You knew what was to be your fate if you stayed here. I have waited till almost the last hour of the last day."

His strength was herculean. Though the neckcloth was loose, and the man had scarcely given one twist to it, yet the Mayor felt the indications of gigantic strength through the clutch of those huge, nervous fingers.

His adversary, without relaxing his grasp, had moved while speaking, and was standing partly behind his victim, who was forced back so that his face was half raised to that of his assassin, and the breadth of his chest exposed. Strong a man as the Mayor was, he felt himself a baby in such a grasp as this. The light of his home was not visible. He was in the middle of that lonely waste, an equal distance between them and V——. A strange sort of pride mixed itself with his brute courage, and he was ashamed to cry for succor. Besides his adversary's grasp had grown tighter in the change of position, and the Mayor felt his breath come short. He made a desperate endeavor to free himself, and as he did so managed to articulate:

"What have I done to injure you and yours?"

"Alvaretta!" was the reply, and the next moment there was a dull, warm thud of repeated stabs, as the assassin's dagger was sheathed in the Mayor's breast.

Alvaretta was the name of the dead man's wife.

In the place where he fell he was found the next morning, and in a few days his murderer was in the hands of the authorities. He gave his name as Gregory Hurlbut, and was identified as having recently become a resident of V——. The whole course of the trial, however, discovered no adequate motive for the deed. The criminal made no confession, and when the morning for the execution dawned—a bitter cold day in January—the public were none the wiser than at first as to the precedents which had conduced to the crime.

The dead Mayor had left his wife in excellent circumstances, and while there was a chary expression of sympathy for her, there was not, except among the ruffians whom he had made his friends and comrades, a word of regret spoken for the deceased. The sheriff, who was, in the main, a man equally just and tender-hearted, and whose one public fault had been the bitterness of his hatred toward the late Mayor Alvin, found himself in a dilemma upon which he had little calculated. In Alvin's death he sincerely felt that V—— had lost the worst enemy to its good order and prosperity. In his heart he was glad, and this feeling outweighed that sense of justice that would have reconciled him, if anything could, to performing the office of executioner. This feeling was shared by all who had hitherto acted as his deputies, and by all the opponents of the late Mayor, constituting the better classes of society. This dilemma, which threatened to leave Hurlbut without an execution, was destined to be overcome in an unexpected manner.

Early on the morning of the execution, just after the prisoner had eaten his breakfast, and before the minister had come to administer the last consolations, the door of the cell opened, and a solitary individual entered. In his ear the jailor whispered, as he closed the door upon him:

"Make haste, for there's never knowing what may happen, and if it should be discovered——"

Leaving the sentence unfinished, the jailer withdrew, and the visitor remained standing in the center of the apartment.

It was the executioner. He appeared to be very young and very slim. He was dressed in a new jacket and pantaloons, and a red and white striped hat. His face was rendered indistinguishable by the black crape with which it was so closely swathed, and which left room only for the eyes, the nostrils, and the mouth. He spoke in a deep, low voice, and rapidly, as though the time allowed him for the business he had come about, was brief.

"I come from Alvaretta Alvin, his wife. Never mind how she sent a message through me—she has money. You loved her once. You betrayed her, and blighted her prospects years ago, before ever she met the man you killed. He never suspected her, and in spite of all his faults they were happy as man and wife. She wants to know why you killed him. She has that much curiosity. You have been well supplied with luxuries since you have been here. You have wondered by whom—I will tell you. She has cared for you—I said she had money. She asks this one return—why did you kill him?"

The condemned man looked at his visitor vaguely. Perhaps his long confinement, and the prospect of immediate death rendered him more patient, more enduring, more credulous, than he would otherwise have been. However this is, he answered:

"That I had loved her once; that she was false to me—not I to her; that she had become the respectable, unsuspected wife of a man high in power—those are my reasons. Accident brought me near them. If he had gone far away and taken her with him, as he could have done, and as I warned him to do, he might be living now. As it was, he was in my power and I killed him. But, young man, who are you?"

At this moment the janitor opened the door.

"For God's sake come!" he exclaimed, "they will be here in a moment!" and almost dragged the executioner forth, leaving Hurlbut plunged in amazement.

At 12 o'clock, the court yard of the prison was crowded with spectators. The prisoner was standing, pale, but brave, his arms pinioned, and the executioner, with crape-bound face, beside him. The sentence had been read, the last prayer uttered, the ministers had withdrawn, the spectators were awaiting in silence the solemn, retributive act. In pulling the cap over the criminal's face, the executioner turned his back upon the crowd, and drew aside the crape that concealed his own. As he did so, he hissed in the ear of the man about to die:

"Gregory Hurlburt, you asked me in the prison who I was. Do you know me now?"

"Great God! Alvaretta"

Every one noticed the frightful change that came over the criminal's features at that moment. There were some, too, who remarked the extreme smallness and whiteness of the executioner's hand. But there was none who heard her, as she breathed into the prisoner's ear as she drew the death-cap down and adjusted the noose:

"In my youth you ruined me. There cannot be found one man in all V—— to hate the murderer of my husband well enough to execute the sentence of the law upon him. I do it. I have money. In killing him you repeated the injury you did me in my youth. This is my revenge."

The spectators were too intent on the struggles of the dying man to notice that the executioner stumbled and almost fell as he descended from the scaffold. But in the Sheriff's private office in the prison, his clothes were exchanged for that of a woman, and from that hour Alvaretta disappeared from the town of V——.

CURIOUS PROPERTY OF IRON.—In 1850, Mr. Marsh, an able chemist of the royal arsenal, England, discovered that it is invariable with iron which has remained a considerable time under water, when reduced to small grains or an impalpable powder, to become red hot, and ignite any substance with which it comes in contact. This he found by scraping corroded metal from a gun, which ignited the paper containing it, and burned a hole in his pocket. The knowledge of this fact is of immense importance, as it may account for many spontaneous fires and explosions, the origin of which has not been traced. A piece of rusty iron, brought in contact with a bale of cotton in a warehouse or on shipboard, may occasion extensive conflagrations and the loss of many lives. The tendency of moistened particles of iron to ignite was discovered by the French chemist, Lemary, as far back as 1670.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN FLOWERS.

A corresponpent of the Chicago Times, writes from Sherman, Wyoming Territory:

Whatever may be said of the impracticability of the route of the Union Pacific Railroad over the Black Hills during the three months of January, February and March, this much will be conceded by every visitor, that, for nine months in the year, the sides and summit of these everlasting hills are bedecked and adorned with the greatest variety and grandest display of flowers and wild fruits that ever grew from the soil of God's own country. Every hillside, nook, valley, lawn, plain and peak, from April until late December, is gorgeously arrayed in countless thousands of flowers of every color, form and size, applicable to the season, and wearing a smiling to welcome each dawning day and shining sun. The higher the peak the brighter and more delicate the flora, and upon the loftiest summits we gather the Pamella Nivalis or snow plant, and its fiery red brand, the star cockade, the mountain lily, red, blue, white, yellow and violet moss flowers; the purple and white plume; the large white tulip, yellow cactus, prickly pear, with its large bell flower of delicate yellow leaf and purple base, and the ever-present, always-blooming wild parsnip and carrot, with their purple and yellow clusters. On the plateau and in the dells we gather the yellow pea blossoms, the yellow flax, purple and blue larkspur, blue bells, peony-poppy, hyacinth, yellow, red, white and tri-colored rose, strawberry, sunflower, the white and purple sweet pea, johnny jump-up, blue, purple, white and yellow flag, sweet williams, pinks and a hundred varieties peculiar only to this elevated floral garden of Wyoming, which now reposes so grandly and charmingly in its cool refreshing altitude of 8262 feet above the sea level.

I have now on my table a boquet of wild flowers made in the shape of a pine-apple, out of nearly seventy varieties, comprising every known color and hue, some of the most delicate formation, and the whole forming a cluster of floral beauty that I ever have seen equaled by a like collection of cultivated flowers in the beautiful State of Louisana. These flowers will retain their freshness of color and sweet fragrance for two weeks, if kept standing in a vase filled with pure, soft spring water of the mountains; and a majority of them, in their native soil, bud, blossom and bloom all summer. I therefore claim that here, at Sherman, the highest point that is crossed by the marvelous continental highway from the Missouri to the Pacific; the highest elevation in the world where a town is rapidly building; where the thermometer in the coldest days of winter never reached ten degrees below zero, and in the warmest days of summer never marked eighty degrees above; where there is a perpetually light and pure air; where decayed matter emits no stench; where dead animals dry up without a sickening odor, and every wind that sweeps from the snowy range is cool, healthy and invigorating; where horses can be worked all summer without sweating, and all winter without blanketing; where the soil is all a rich decomposed granite; the rocks, beautiful in their towering grandeur, all a granite, gneiss and limestone, interspersed with precious stones of silica, chalcedony, quartz, felspar, topaz, agate, mica, talc, hornblende and serpentine; where the springs boil up the purest, softest, coldest water; where scattered over the surface, but in plain view, are numerous ledges of quartz, which time and capital will soon develop into rich leads of gold, silver, tin, antimony, iron and copper; and where everything that grows or lives, assumes a grandeur not attained by any species in a lower latitude, is, I claim, the Eden of the northwest, and the only pleasant abiding-place for the city invalid during the sickly dog-days in your sun scorched world eight thousand feet below us.

CAN'T AFFORD IT.—The Erie Republican has seen the man who couldn't afford to take a paper. It gives his history as follows. He has his counterpart in this town:

There are men who don't take a daily paper, because "they can't afford it"—they are too poor—they require all their money to keep up their family expenses "these hard times." We met one of these the other day, and we said to him he ought to have the Republican. "Well, really," said he, "I would if I could afford it. Would like to oblige you; but things are so confounded tight just now that it is hard to make both ends meet." We did not press the matter upon our "hard up" friend, but knowing his habits, we made the following calculation, based on that knowledge. Two glasses of ale a day, at ten cents, seventy-three dollars; three cigars, one after each meal, one hundred and nine dollars and fifty cents; board for a big dog, thirty dollars—all in one year, two hundred and twelve dollars and fifty cents—sufficient to buy six barrels of flour, one barrel of sugar, one sack of coffee, a good coat, a respectable dress, a frock for the baby, and half a dozen pairs of shoes, and all the daily papers in the city, to say nothing about magazines, books, &c. You see the point—the man couldn't afford it, and there are thousands just like for the same reason.

SCHOOL READERS.

The Detroit Free Press wants modern improvements worked into school reading-books, and offers the following as a sample of the sort that would be up to the spirit of the age:

"The horse is on his nest. He is a fine horse. Can he make his mile in two minutes? Some horses have the scratches. So do some boys.

"The goose is on her roost. She is a fine quadruped, and has a tender tenor voice. Can the goose fly far? No; neither the goose nor the rhinoceros can fly far.

"Here is man. He is a fireman. He belongs to No. 10. If you are a good boy, you will some day be an angel like that fireman. They sometimes get their heads broken.

"Here is the gas works. It is a high building. All our Congressmen are born here. Do Congressmen ever steal? You may be sure they do.

"Do you see that small boy? He is a good boy, and supports his mother by selling newspapers. His father don't have to work any more now.

"Here is a picture of a young widow. See how 'sad' she looks. Her husband could not pay her dry-goods bill, and so he—died. Do you think she will get another man? She will try hard.

"Here is the sea side. You see that 'swell' there drinking spring water?—What is he here for? For his health.—Will he get it? Yes; if his father's money holds out and she don't get engaged first to that fellow with the paste diamond.

"Do you see this colored man. See how fast he runs! He is 'running' for an office. He was a poor lad once, and worked for his clothes and victuals. Now he don't.

"This is a picture of Horace Greeley. What is he doing? He is mailing strawberry plants to his subscribers. They are fine plants, and yield about a bushel to a plant. This is his 'political economy.'

"Here is a fine likeness of Colfax.—See how he smiles! He is looking at the White House.

"This is a scene in Tennessee. That man there, weeping, is Stokes. Why does he weep? Has he much money? No; he can't see a Senator. Poor man! He will doubtless find some one in Washington who will sympathize with him.

"What is that man doing there? He is counting over Government greenbacks; he is a public official. See how fast he counts! Those one dollar bills on the left-hand side are the money he is to return to the Convention; those ten dollar bills on the right are the money he is going to put into his pocket. It is a good thing to be a public official. Now you're talking!

"Here is the face of a reporter. See how joyful he looks. He has just heard that a man has cut his own throat, and he is going for the item. Should you like to be a reporter, and get licked on dark nights, and see dead persons, and climb up four pairs of stairs?"

HOW POOR BOYS REACH THE TOP ROUND.—There are 17,919 persons who pay an income tax in this city; sixty-seven persons who pay taxes on incomes of $100,000 or over. Most of these solid gentlemen are self-made men, who have come up from the lowest round of the ladder. The man who heads the list, A. T. Stewart, everybody knows, was an Irish emigrant, who commenced life with less than twenty-five cents; indeed, with few exceptions, most of the parties in the list were scarce as well off as Mr. Stewart. Take Henry Keep; he boasts that he graduated from the poor-house of Jefferson county. Jay Gould drove a herd of cattle from Delhi, Delaware county, when a lad, for fifty cents a day, in order to get money enough to reach the Hudson river. David Groesbeck, over thirty years ago, used to mend old shoes for his brother, who was a respectable shoemaker in Albany. We all know the history of James Gordon Bennett and Robert Bonner, poor boys full of talent and industry. Rufus Hatch when a youngster, had an ambition to hold the reins of a peddler's wagon. E. D. Morgan commenced life with a quart measure of molasses. It is scarce a dozen years since Henry Clews was an errand boy in one of the banking houses down town. The Brothers Sligman started out in life with a peddler's pack. David Dowes, in his younger days, retailed pork by the half pound and molasses by the gill. H. T. Helmbold was first cabin boy on the sloop Mary Jane, that navigated Delaware river. We might go on through the list and show that nearly every one of these solid men were the architects of their own fortunes. Young men, who are struggling for place and position, should remember that the individuals in the list above, had to battle for life just as hard as they are doing. Let them take heart and never say die.

Honor and shame from no condition rise.
Act well your part—there all the honor lies.

TO CURE CORNS.—Dissolve glue as you would to mend furniture; spread it on the corns; place muslin rags over them to prevent the glue from sticking to the stocking; repeat the application a few times, and the cure will be effectual.

Another Cure.—Tie a piece of raw cotton to the corn and wet it several times a day with spirits of turpentine. This will in three days cure the corn without the least apparent pain.

In another column will be found the letter of George H. Pendleton accepting the nomination as the Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio. Like everything coming from the pen or lips of Mr. Pendleton, it is an able, straight forward and manly document, and will command general approval. The concluding sentence, coming from such a source, is peculiarly significant: "Of the result in October we need have no fears."

The radicals in Tennessee have abandoned all expectation of defeating Andrew Johnson's election to the United States Senate.—The following Washington despatch of a very recent date, to the New York Tribune, would seem to render the election of the "great impeached" a forgone conclusion:

Private advices from Tennessee, received here to-day, give rise to the belief that ex President Johnson's prospects for election to the United States Senate are increasing. It is well-known that his most formidable opponent up to this time has been Hon. Bailie Peyton, who has now withdrawn from the contest, and is a warm supporter of Mr. Johnson.

In referring to the fact that Gov. Geary acted in 1860 as census taker in two or three townships in Westmoreland county, the Harrisburg Patriot of Saturday last does what we conceive to be an act of injustice to Jas. G. Campbell, Esq., the then acting Marshal of the Western District of Pennsylvania, when it says that he refused to appoint any but avowed friends of Breckinridge. The editor of this paper was appointed census taker for the southern district of this county by Mr. Campbell, and he was not only an earnest, though humble, advocate of the election of Stephen A. Douglas, but at least one of the prominent friends who aided him in obtaining the appointment must have been known to Mr. Campbell himself as a faithful worker in the effort to elect the "Little Giant." If credit is due Mr. Campbell for this act, it should not be withheld from him, and we deem it our duty to bear testimony to the facts as we have stated them.

We invite the attention of our readers to an article in this week's issue from the Genius of Liberty, published in Uniontown, Fayette county, on the subject of John W. Geary and the soldiers of the Mexican war. A meeting of precisely the same character was held in the Court House in this place about the same time, and resolutions quite as strong as those of the Uniontown meeting were adopted. We have been unable to procure a file of the paper which was published here at that time, but many of the citizens of this place have a lively recollection of the meeting and of the proceedings attending it. Geary having gone from this county to Mexico, as the captain of a company of Cambria county volunteers, and having subsequently become Colonel of the Second Pennsylvania Regiment, the indignation manifested against him by the volunteers from Cambria, on their return home, was regarded at the time as especially damaging to his military as well as to his personal reputation. We never heard the slightest denial of the truth of the grave and serious allegations which were then publicly made against him by those who served under him, and who may fairly be presumed to have best known his Mexican career.

Forney Rebuked.

No radical newspaper in the State has been so presistent in its efforts to depreciate the professional reputation of Cyrus L. Pershing, Esq., as the Philadelphia Press. The false and villainous attacks upon Mr. Pershing, which daily disgrace its pages, usually find a prominent place in the columns of the Johnstown Tribune. We perceive, with pleasure, that while the editor of the Alleghanian, the Republican organ of this portion of the county, defends the principles and policy of his party with zeal and ability, he will neither dishonor himself nor prostitute his paper by aiding the Press and the Tribune in their disreputable attempts, to belittle Mr. Pershing, or to filch from him his fair name and reputation. The editor of the Alleghanian has known Mr. Pershing's reputation as a lawyer for years, and in the last number of his paper bears the following just and honorable testimony to the high character of that "County Squire":

We observe with pain that the Philadelphia Press and a host of imitators are busily engaged day by day and week by week in the dirty work of attempting to blacken the personal and professional character of Hon. C. L. Pershing, the Democratic nominee for Supreme Judge. "County Squire," "Pershing and not Perishing," "a lawyer of no learning and no ability," "a country lout"—these are some of the epithets thrown at Mr. Pershing. We thought the day for this species of political warfare was gone. Mr. Pershing is a man of undoubted ability as a lawyer, has made a mark high upon the record as a politician, and is withal a Christian gentleman. We believe our organs will do infinitely better service for our party by attacking Mr. Pershing's political principles than Mr. Pershing as an individual.

Meade and Packer.

On Thursday, 19th inst., a complimentary banquet was given to the Farmers' Club of Philadelphia by Asa Packer, at the Mansion House in Mauch Chunk, in which place Mr. Packer resides. The Carbon Democrat gave a graphic account of the interesting occasion, and from that account the following is extracted:

"Among the distinguished guests present were George W. Childs, of the Philadelphia Ledger, Gen. Robert Patterson, S. W. Caurell, Col. W. Patterson, James Patterson, Gen. Geo. G. Meade, S. V. Merrick, W. H. Drayton, H. Coppee, F. A. Comley, William H Gatzmer, Robert E. Patterson, Charles Hartshorn and John W. Gillingham. After doing ample justice to the various viands, the genial flow of feeling drifted into toasts and speeches. Gen. Robert Patterson led off in quite an eloquent and earnest tribute to Pennsylvania and to her gifted son who commanded our armies at Gettysburg, winding up with a toast to Gen. Geo. G. Meade. In a few words General Meade responded, thanking General Patterson for his words of commendation, and at the same time in very chaste and happy style returning the compliment to the hero of three wars. Gen. Meade then proposed the following, which was received with much enthusiasm:

"'Our host, Hon. Asa Packer—may his success in the past be eclipsed by his successes in the future.'"

Here is a plain, unmistakeable endorsement of Asa Packer's character by a most prominent and distinguished Union General. Not only that, but General Meade expresses the wish that Judge Packer's success in the past may be eclipsed by his successes in the future. Whereupon let all the organs of John W. Geary denounce Meade as a traitor and as one who is willing to sacrifice the glorious results of the war. Can such things be and not excite our special wonder?—Surely not. Therefore let Gen. Meade be proclaimed a copperhead and a disloyal man. The very thought of the hero of Gettysburg breaking bread at the same table with Asa Packer is certainly too much for radical nerves, and demands at the hands of the "God and morality" party a pointed and emphatic rebuke. This is the same Asa Packer who has been described by the editor of the Johnstown Tribune as a Breckinridge democrat—as having opposed the war, and with having, while in Europe, consorted for two whole years with rebels. There would seem to be a slight difference of opinion on these questions between the editor of the Tribune and Gen. Meade. It is an old adage, however, that great men will sometimes differ.

Morton and Pendleton.

Because George H. Pendleton is in favor of paying the 5 20 bonds in greenbacks, how many thousand times has he not been denounced by the radical press as the open advocate of repudiation?

Ex-Gov. O. P Morton, of Indiana, is the leader of the radicals in the United States Senate, and is the ablest member of his party in that body. John Covode, having failed to induce Attorney General Brewster to resign, in order to "heal existing dissensions," has prevailed on Senator Morton to visit Pittsburgh during the present week and address a redical meeting, for the purpose of propping up the failing political fortunes of John W. Geary. This same Senator Morton made a speech on financial questions in the Senate, on the 6th day of July, 1868, from which we take the following extract:

"Mr. President: The question as to whether the 5-20's are payable only in coin, or may be paid in legal-tender notes, has been brought prominently into this debate. The Chairman of the Committee of Finance (John Sherman), who has had much to do with the financial affairs of this country for six or seven years past, insists that the Government has a right to pay the 5 20's in existing legal tenders.

"Mr. President, I believe the law—and it is to the law we must look in regard to this question after all—is with the Senator from Ohio on this question. When it is asserted that Government is bound to redeem the 5-20's in coin, I say it is not only without law, but is in express violation of at least four statutes.—The law authorizing the 10-40's declares that principal and interest shall be paid in coin.—The several laws creating the 5-20's declare that the interest shall be paid in coin, but are silent as to the principal of the debt, and do not say in what kind of money the principal shall be paid. This silence is very significant."

If this is not the doctrine of George H. Pendleton in all its length and breadth, we would like to know to what else it can be compared. It is as much like it as one egg is like another. For uttering just such sentiments, Pendleton has been unceasingly abused and misrepresented by every radical sheet and every radical stump orator in Pennsylvania, and yet Gov. Morton, who advocates precisely the same doctrine, is sent for to deliver a political speech to the radicals of Pittsburgh. With the same political consistency they might have sent for George H. Pendleton to address the bondholders of that intensely radical stronghold. What a contemptible opinion of the radical leaders must the holders of 5-20 bonds in Pittsburgh entertain, after they have ascertained, if they do not already know it, that Senator Morton has always stood squarely on the Pendleton platform.

Grant, in his wanderings through the Eastern States, arrived at Concord, N. H., on the 25th of August. In response to a speech of welcome from the Mayor of the city, the "second Washington" delivered the following luminous reply:

Mr. Mayor: It affords me great pleasure to visit the Granite State and its capital. It is the first time I have ever been able to be, I believe, within its borders, and I regret I cannot make a longer stay among its beautiful mountains.

Here is a speech as is a speech, in which a President seems to be in doubt as to whether or not he had ever before been in New Hampshire. During the early history of Illinois a candidate for the Territorial legislature was called upon to address a meeting of his political friends. He modestly declined upon the ground of his well known want of ability to do so, but proposed a compromise by magnanimously agreeing to hold any man's hat who would undertake the job.—We commend that man's example to Grant the next time he is called on to make a speech.

A negro fiend named Josiah Miller outraged a fifteen year old white orphan girl in Juniata county, on Tuesday of last week.—The monster is now in jail.

COMMUNICATION.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION,
AS OUR OWN REPORTER SAW IT.

Editor Freeman—The Cambria County Republican Convention met in the Court House, Ebensburg, on Tuesday of last week. The reason it did not meet on Monday, which has heretofore been the day, was owing to the fact that the Pa. R. R. schedule would have required the Johnstown delegation to take the train at 5 o'clock, a. m., and lie over at Cresson about three hours; whereas on Tuesday they could start at 8 o'clock and make close connection with the Ebensburg train at Cresson. And here let me remark that as the aforesaid delegates belong to the "God and morality" party, and as Cresson abounds with ten-pin, billiard and other saloons, they could not bear the idea of waiting three mortal hours at that immoral resort.

There must have been fully thirty delegates present, varying in complexion from the milk and water, the mildly conservative and the slightly bronzed to the blackest of black republicans. The Convention was called to order by Alex. Kennedy, of Johnstown, the then Chairman of the Co. Committee, who delivered the following address to the Convention:

Gentlemen—As was once remarked by Cato, the elder, there is nothing like leather. But that was long, long ago, before railroads and steamboats were thought of. My private opinion is there is nothing like lumber and shooks, and therefore I move that Hon. A. A. Barker, of Ebensburg, formerly a Congressman, but more recently a member of the State Central Committee, act as Chairman of this Convention.

Which was of course agreed to amid much enthusiasm.

Cyrus Elder, of Johnstown, who writes poetry, and C. T. Roberts, of Ebensburg, who don't or can't read much of it, were appointed Secretaries.

Hon. A. A. Barker, after being conducted to the chair with considerable pomp, spoke as follows:

Men and Breathring—I am much obliged to you for the honor you have conferred on me in choosing me to preside over your deliberations. I am the oldest republican present, and ever since I come from "deown to Maine" I have fit dreffal hard for the republican party, and I shall continue to do so until I die!—Won't I, D. O.? Of course I will! And, gentlemen of the Convention, if I do say it myself who hadn't orter to say it, I think you have not only done me but yourselves honor in selecting me as Chairman. The Convention is now ready for business and the country is in danger. Gentlemen of the Convention, when I say this great republic is in danger I mean that the Cuban war still continues, and consequently the demand for "shook" grows smaller by degrees and beautifully less every day, and I also mean that the "whisky ring" continues to increase and multiply at an alarming ratio. This convention is the first temperance convention we have ever had in Cambria county. Therefore, gentlemen, as Rome was saved by the cackling of geese, may we not hope that like causes will produce like results on this momentous occasion? This Convention is now ready for business. If any body has any motion to make let him make it, or forever hereafter hold his peace. God save the Commonwealth and this honorable assemblage.

Mr. Campbell of Johnstown—I move that we proceed with haste, and yet with dignity, to nominate a candidate for Register and Recorder.

Mr. Elder of Johnstown (formerly of Somerset)—Is that motion amendable, and if so, how much?

Chairman—I think so; that is, I guess so; that is, I should judge so; that is, yes—if you will take one pint of ginger pop.

Mr. Elder—Thank you, I don't drink; but I now move that Thos. McKernan, of Johnstown, be recognized by this convention as the workingmen's candidate for Register and Recorder, and that we pledge him our support at the October election.

C. T. Roberts of Ebensburg—Mr. Chairman, I object to the poetical pressure in favor of Mr. McKernan, or "any other man." I rise to a point of order, and that is that poetry is out of place in this convention.

Chairman—I don't see the point, but as you have raised it it must be all right. I don't like poetry myself, and decide it out of order.

Mr. Roberts—Then, sir, I move to lay Mr. Elder's motion, Mr. Elder's poetry, and, for that matter, Mr. Elder himself, on the table.

Which was agreed to unanimously.

D. O. Evans of Ebensburg—I nominate Samuel W. Davis, of Ebensburg, for Register and Recorder. I had a speech written out on the subject, but as my worthy colleague, Mr. Barker, has been unexpectedly chosen chairman, he borrowed it to read as his inaugural.

Geo. Huntley, of Ebensburg, seconded the nomination in a very chaste speech, dilating at some length on washing machines,—useful for cleansing dirty (political as well as personal) linen,—patent locks and cheese knives.

Mr. Evans—I move the nominations now close.

Mr. Huntley—I second the motion.

Mr. Davis was then almost unanimously nominated.

Mr. Porto-rico of Susquehanna township—Mr. B——, I mean Mr. Chairman, I move that—yes I do—that—

Chairman—Mr Porto-rico is out of order; that is, I guess so.

Mr. P.—I am not out of order. I never was in better order (Query—did he mean for a fight?) in my life. I now nomi—nate—

Chairman—I now nominate you into your seat, and want you to stay there.

Mr. P.—I won't do it. I nomi—

Cries of "Put him out!" "Kick him out!" "Give him some ginger pop!"

Mr. P.—I defy any man to put me out. I'll not drink any ginger pop, so I won't. I stand upon the immutable principles of justice, life, liberty and the pursuit of—well, yes, I do; I'll be darned if I don't.

The obstreperous delegate was here seized by about one dozen of lobbyists, who proceeded to eject him from the convention, he yelling all the while, "You can't put me out!" "I'll vote the whole democratic ticket!" "I won't drink ginger pop!" "Shook won't take in Cuba!" "I'll fight it out on this line!" "The republican convention, chairman and all, can go to —— and be darned to them!"

After quiet had been restored the chairman arose with calm dignity and said: "God save the country!—this is dreffal business." To which D. O. E. responded: "Amen—so be it!"

At this juncture your reporter was called out on important business, and did not get back until the convention had adjourned.—Still he has something more to say on the subject, and you will hear from him soon again.

Sly Coon.

—Time brings its sweet revenges. After four years of terrible war in which the gallant Colonel Forney did not see fit to participate, and four more years of reconstruction, he has had revenge at last on his rebel enemies. He danced on the graves of their dead at Gettysburg on Wednesday night last.

—The largest dodge in advertising, lately came off in the interest of a hotel at Gettysburg. As a re-union, the assemblage was a failure, but as an advertisement it was a success.

Mr. Pendleton's Nomination.

The Correspondence between the State Central Committee and Mr. Pendleton—Mr. Pendleton's Letter of Acceptance.

Columbus, Ohio, August 10, 1869.

Hon. George H. Pendleton—Dear Sir: You have been unanimously nominated as the Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the declination of General W. S. Rosecrans, for reasons personal to himself, but entirely complimentary to the Democracy. We are deputed by the Democratic State Central Committee to request your acceptance, well assured, as we are, that no other nomination could receive so earnest and cordial an indorsement from the Democratic and Conservative people of this State, or inspire them with such confidence of success. We well understand that you fully accord with the principles enunciated by the Democratic State Convention assembled on the 7th of July, and we know that no more able and acceptable exponent of these principles could be named.

Awaiting your response, and with sincere pleasure in communicating to you the emphatic wish of the Democracy, we remain,

Sincerely yours,
E. F. Bingham,
H. H. Dodge,
David Tarbell,
A. S. Ramsey,
E. V. Brookfield,
Committee.

Cincinnati, August 15, 1869.

Messrs. E. F. Bingham, H. H. Dodge, David Tarbell, A. S. Ramsey and E. V. Brookfield, Committee.

Gentlemen: I have received, by the hands of the Chairman, yout letter notifying me formally of my nomination by the Democratic State Central Committee, as candidate for the office of Governor, to supply the vacancy caused by the declination of General Rosecrans. I repeat to you what I said to the Committee by telegraph—that if it was their unanimous opinion, notwithstanding my views and wishes, that I ought to accept the nomination, I would consider their request as an imperative command to make the canvass, and I would do so to the best of my ability.

I presume it is well known to all who take an interest in these matters, that I did not desire this nomination. I appreciate fully its importance; I recognized the dignity of the high office; I believed your nominee would be elected; but my health, impaired by an accident, my occupation, and my plan of life for the present, combined to prevent my desiring it.

The nomination of General Rosecrans commanded my cordial and zealous support. When he declined, because he had removed from the State, I was anxious for the nomination of a wise and accomplished gentleman, an eminent jurist and statesman—Judge Ranny—or of a gallant and patriotic soldier—General McCook—or of one of the other distinguished gentlemen who had been voted for in the Convention; but when they all declined and the committee with entire unanimity, and with their concurrence, tendered me the nomination, and with great urgency claimed my services, I felt that I had no alternative but to accede to their wishes. I felt that my personal convenience must be held for nothing in the presence of the demand of that great and patriotic party which had so often and so signally honored me with its confidence.

In this spirit I accepted the nomination, and will do whatever I, in truth and honor, may to secure the election. I will not now discuss the questions which divide the parties. In due time I hope to be so far recovered as to be able to take part in the great debate.

Governor Hays in his speech at Wilmington, forgot to allude to the Fifteenth Amendment and his views on that important question.

In discussing the finances, he said, "We are in the midst of a profound peace, yet money is scarce and business is depressed." He might have added that employment is difficult to obtain; that labor is badly rewarded; that industrial pursuits are all hampered; that enterprising men engaged in business are standing on the very verge of bankruptcy—that interest is enormously high—that the tariff is most oppressive—that the internal taxation is most unequal, unjust and onerous—that dead capital is exempted, and active capital and labor are weighed down—and then warming with the picture, he might have also said that for eight years the Republican party had been in absolute possession of the Government; that a Republican Secretary of the Treasury has now control of the money market of the country, and that he uses his power only still further to contract the currency, to increase the "hard times," and to buy overdue bonds at one hundred and twenty dollars, which by law he is entitled to buy at par, thereby taking twenty dollars for every hundred from the tax-payer and giving it to the bondholder. The farmer, the merchant, the mechanic, and the manufacturer, will ask why these things are so?—What is the cause? What is the remedy? They are important questions this fall.—They touch us all! Democrats and Republicans alike. They rise above the domain of mere partisan politics, and should be considered with the calmest reason, the purest motives and the best judgment. In this spirit I shall discuss them so soon as I am able to take part with my friends in the activity of the canvass. Of the result in October we need have no fears.

I am, very respectfully,
Geo. H. Pendleton.

Fatal Accident.—On Tuesday morning last, Mrs. McQuade, wife of James McQuade, of Snyder township, met with a terrible accident which resulted in her death the same evening. The particulars, so far as we have received them from a reliable source, are as follows: Mr. McQuade, about a week ago, left home to attend to some business in Pittsburg, intending to remain a few days. On Monday evening, Mrs. McQuade heard a sound resembling some one falling, but failed to ascertain the cause.—On Tuesday morning the sound was repeated in such a manner as to alarm her. Fearing that it was a token indicative of some accident having happened to her husband, she became alarmed and saddled a horse to ride to Tyrone, about two miles and a half, to ascertain whether anything had occurred.—Having proceeded some distance the horse frightened and threw her. She then walked the balance of the distance. While at Tyrone she was standing on the main track and stepped off on a siding to allow the local freight to pass and while standing on the siding, was knocked down by a freight train being shifted, five or six cars running over her, crushing both legs about the knees in a horrible manner. A messenger was despatched to this city to ascertain whether Mr. McQuade had arrived here, and met him, he having returned on the Cincinnati Express at 5:45 p. m. Both left here on the Cincinnati, and Mr. McQuade reached Tyrone just as his wife was dying. The deceased was an estimable lady and her death and the circumstances surrounding it, have caused a general gloom in the entire community.—Blair County Radical.

[From the Uniontown Genius of Liberty.]

John W. Geary and the Soldiers of the Mexican War.

On Saturday, July 15th, 1848, and shortly after the return of the Fayette county volunteers from the war with Mexico, they held a meeting in Connellsville, at which the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The discharge and arrival home of the remaining members of the Fayette volunteers has again placed them in the position of citizens of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and enabled them to speak and assert their rights, they now embrace this occasion, the first opportunity since their return, to express their deep and ABIDING INDIGNATION at the conduct of JOHN W. GEARY, since he was elected to the command of the 2nd Pennsylvania Regiment at the city of Mexico. The said John W. Geary procured his election by a mere plurality of votes by FALSEHOOD and DECEPTION. While he was promising to give Company H the privilege of electing their own officers, according to the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, he, the said Geary, bargained with others for votes, promising and giving appointment in said Company H to men from other companies who might answer his peculiar purposes. The law of Congress of the 13th of May, 1846, calling for volunteers for the war with Mexico, has this provision:

Src. 5. And be it further enacted, that the said Volunteers so offering their services shall be accepted by the President, in companies, batallions, squadrons and regiments, whose officers shall be appointed in the manner prescribed by law in the several States and Territories to which such companies, batallions, squadrons and regiments shall respectfully belong.

The said Geary, while he availed himself of this law to get himself into a high office, refused the same right to Company H, which legally and properly belonged to them.—Therefore,

Resolved, That we, the remaining members of the Fayette County Volunteers, view the conduct of the said John W. Geary towards Company H as an OUTRAGE upon their just rights, as secured to them by the laws of Pennsylvania as well as the laws of Congress. The whole course and conduct of the said Geary being INCONSISTENT with THE CHARACTER OF A GENTLEMAN OR MAN OF HONOR—it was treating us as a set of men who did not know their rights, and who could not appreciate them—it was CORRUPT and MERCENARY in all its bearings, characteristic of a LOW AND GROVELING CREATURE, hunting and seeking popularity for courage and patriotism THAT HE NEVER EARNED, by bargaining with supple tools and mercenaries, one of whom at least was a notorious blackleg.

Resolved, That the arrest and trial of 1st Sergt. John A. Cummings, by a Court Martial, for daring to assert his rights, and those of the company, was A BASE AND COWARDLY EXERCISE OF USURPED AUTHORITY ON THE PART OF THE SAID JOHN W. GEARY—after he, the said Geary, had SURREPTITIOUSLY and VILLAINOUSLY SUPPRESSED the order of the Adjt General of this State, (issued by direction of Governor Shunk,) directing him to fill all vacancies in the 2nd Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers, by election—taking advantage of his STOLEN authority to cover up his WORSE and BASE MOTIVES, and to injure the hard earned fame of a brave and gallant officer.

On motion of Peter A. Johns, it was

Resolved, That all the harm we wish Colonel Geary, is, THAT HIS DISGRACE MAY FOLLOW HIM THRO' ALL THE LANES and AVENUES OF LIFE, AND THAT HE MAY NEVER DIE OR GET OLD.

John W. Geary is now the candidate of the Republican party for Governor of Pennsylvania. Read the foregoing proceedings carefully, and say whether he is a proper person to fill that high office, and whether he is entitled to your support. Remember, at the time the above proceedings were adopted, Col. Geary was acting with the Democratic party, and the Fayette county Volunteers were nearly all Democrats, so that the said proceedings are entirely free from any charge of having been instigated through political motives.

—We commend the following to the attention of Governor Geary and his Gettysburg revellers. It is from Crabb Robinson's delightful diary just published, and refers to a visit to a battle-field not consecrated by fraternal blood: "We dined," says Mr. Robinson, "at Waterloo. In the village, which is naked and wretched, a festival was being held in honor of the patron saint; but we were told that in consequence of the battle, and out of respect to the brave men who lay there, there would be no dancing."

—In Philadelphia three tenements have been secured for the use of the "Little Sisters of the Poor," a charitable Order which was commenced in a small fishing port, in France, in 1840, by a poor priest and an obscure girl, and since that time they have established over one hundred and twenty homes, where they shelter, feed and clothe 20,000 old people. The Sisters having charge of the Home in Philadelphia will receive as many infirm old men and old women as inmates as they can make room for, without distinction to creed or nationality.

DENTISTRY
DR. JOHN FRY,
Assisted by his Daughter,

Having permanently located in Johnstown, prepared to answer all professional calls, and insert ARTIFICIAL TEETH on genuine Rubber (Vulcanite) Base, or, if preferred, he will insert them on Gold (20 carats fine), or Silver (chemically pure)—both of his own preparation on Platina, Alumnium, Palladium, Coralite and Adamantine. Also, the Porcelain teeth.

Extracting, Filling and Cleaning of Teeth carefully performed, avoiding all unnecessary pain.

He would also call attention to his new method of filling teeth with CRYSTAL GOLD, which is the best preparation ever introduced for filling teeth. He can restore a tooth to its natural shape with this gold, and make the filling as solid as a piece of gold coin. Go and have your teeth examined every six months at least, and if there is any decay about them have them filled with Crystal Gold and you will never need artificial teeth. Artificial teeth are a poor substitute, but they do not compare with the natural teeth when in a healthy state.

All work done in such manner as not to be excelled in Style, Beauty, Comfort, Lightness, Durability, and warranted to give satisfaction and be harmless to the mouth.

Samples of his work may be examined by all who desire to see them. The following speaks for itself:

TESTIMONIALS.

BRIEF MENTION.—Look out for lions and tigers loose in the grand procession of Ames' circus and menagerie.——Owing to the expected arrival of the "Immortal J. N.," and the consequent unveiling of the truth, "Life Illustrations, No. 6," will not appear until after the election.——Ames' circus and menagerie is the most chaste, elegant and complete amusement organization extant. Exhibits here on Saturday of next week.——Another change has been made in the Pa. R. R. passenger time table. The effect it has had on our Branch may be seen in the corrected schedule in this column.——Millie Tournor, champion female gymnast and equilibrist is creating a great sensation. She is with Ames' circus and menagerie——Thomas Wilts, (another doubting Thomas,) of Clearfield township, wants to be elected County Commissioner on his own hook, but has little hope of making the landing or preventing the election of Mr. Neason by a handsome majority. What insanity!——Ella Eugenie, the only lion enchantress in the world, is with Ames' circus and menagerie.——Our second foreign letter is in type, but we have no room to publish it this week.——Madame Codona, the beautiful equestienne and equilibrist is with Ames' circus and menagerie.——All kinds of nails, except finger and toe nails, can hereafter be bought either by the keg or pound, from M. L. Oatman, at lower prices than anywhere else in Northern Cambria.——Miss Etta Cook, the youngest and most daring bareback equestienne in the world, is with Ames' circus and menagerie.——The log barn and nearly all the summer crop of Mr. Dennis McCauley, of Clearfield township, was destroyed by fire on Wednesday of last week. A man asking him to get in his crop put a pipe he had been smoking in his vest pocket, hanging in the barn; the heat of the pipe set fire to some matches and the matches did the balance of the work. Everybody was in a distant field at the time.——Herr Elijah Engell is not dead, but performs with a Royal Bengal Tiger in Ames' circus and menagerie.——Our next door neighbor, M. L. Oatman, sold 135 barrels of flour during the past month, and not one barrel was returned. Good flour and fair prices secured this result.——Harry Codona, England's champion somersault rider, is with Ames' circus and menagerie.——A very heavy frost fell in this vicinity yesterday (Wednesday) morning.——Happy Jack Lawton is principal jester with Ames' circus and menagerie.——Our friend and subscriber, Mr. C. Miller, of Clearfield township, presented us the other day a choice early apple, known as the New York Strawberry variety. It was large, luscious and free from blemish, and is one of the most productive varieties.——Oatman's flour is made of the best white winter wheat, and never fails to make the very best of bread. Try it.——Master Francois, the boneless boy, is with Ames' circus and menagerie.——An eight-pound boy baby was born in this place one day last week. A heavy contribution to the next census.——Several of our local advertisements have been crowded out this week. Hope our friends will bear with us.——The poles for our telegraph line are now being erected in town, and the "good time coming" will shortly have arrivin."——A party of Philadelphia and other capitalists have bought the necessary grounds near Summitville, and will proceed without delay to the erection of immense buildings for a summer resort.——J. N. Free, the "immortal," will lecture at the Court House in this place, on next (Thursday) evening, September 2d.——Gentlemen will be charged 10 cents admission, but so far as the ladies are concerned it will be a free blow by a Free lecturer, and we hope the fair sex will attend freely, as they know so much about "lifting the veil."——We tender our sincere sympathies to James M. Swank, Esq., of the Johnstown Tribune, in his bereavement occasioned by the death of his wife—a most amiable and accomplished lady and true woman.——May his loss be her eternal gain.——"Real Estate Transfers" get the go by this week again, but hereafter we will endeavor to be more prompt in their publication. This feature of our paper, we are assured, is a very popular one.——Mr. Geo. W. Cope associated Mr. Wm. H. Schwartz, of Altoona, with him in the publication of the Farmers' Advocate. It is a strong team, mentally and morally, and we hope to see it all successfully in double harness.——The Clearfield Republican says that a man named Ankerman was reported to have been murdered in Beccaria township, near the Cambria county line, week before last, but could learn no particulars.——A little son of S. S. Diehl, of Bedford, was recently poisoned to death by an overdose of worm lozenges.——A man named Peter Swartz was literally dashed to pieces by being caught in the gearing of the machinery of a woolen factory in Westmoreland county, opposite Saltsburg, on Monday morning of last week. The wheels were making over 100 revolutions per minute at the time, and his head, arms, legs, etc., were scattered all over the building.——See advertisement offering the use of National Hotel and personal property at Altoona for sale.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATIONS.—In addition to the examinations announced by us a few weeks ago, the following will be held: Clearfield and Chest Springs, at St. Augustine, Sept. 10; White, at Bangor school house, Sept. 11; Carroll and Carrolltown, at Carrolltown, Sept. 14; Susquehanna, at Portland's school house, Sept. 15; Chest, at Hartshoot's school house, Sept. 16; Jackson, at Fairview, Sept. 21; Taylor, at Headrick's school house, Sept. 22; Croyle, at Summerhill, Sept. 23; Wilmore and Summerhill township, at Wilmore, Sept. 24; Conemaugh, at Singer's school house, Sept. 27; Franklin and East Conemaugh, at East Conemaugh, Sept. 28; Richland, at Kring's school house, Sept. 29; Yoder, at Stutzman's school house, Sept. 30. Special examinations will be held in the Union school house, Ebensburg, Oct. 16 and Nov. 2nd in the Union school house, Johnstown, Oct. 30. Examinations commence at 9 o'clock, a. m.

AN INFAMOUS OUTRAGE.—Our young friend, James A. Kittell, writing from Sand Patch, Somerset county, to his father in this place, under date of August 23d, gives the following particulars of the most infamous act of sacrilegious vandalism that we have ever saw recorded. Such impious wretches as the perpetrators of this horrible crime are a disgrace to humanity, and we could scarcely believe that religious bigotry could beget such hellish propensities even in Somerset county:

* * * * * On Saturday evening last, the priest, Father Brown, went to the church to hear confessions. On opening the door he found the Mass book torn to pieces and scattered over the floor and seats. The candles were cut into small pieces and ranged around the altar steps, as if in mockery. The tabernacle was taken down and broken up. The altar clothes were daubed and smeared all over with human filth, and everything on and about the altar was destroyed. The vestry room was broken open and the priest's vestments cut and torn into shreds, and the altar bread was scattered and trampled on the floor. The chalice and platin were hammered with a poker into a shapeless mass, completely destroying them—In fact, everything connected with the church, even to the pictures on the walls, were destroyed. Such a sight as the inside of the church presented I never want to see again. There must have been three or four persons engaged in this diabolical work of destruction, but no positive clue has yet been had to them. Suspicion fastened upon one man, and the indignation of the Catholics was so great that fears were entertained that they would deal with him summarily. The proof not being positive saved him, but I fear even yet that violent means will be taken with parties suspected. Of course it was none of the men at work on the railroad making here, who are nearly all Catholics, but persons residing in the neighborhood, and if they are found out it will be apt to go hard with them. Entrance to the church was effected through a window, and the time occupied in doing the damage must have been fully two hours. The church stands back from the public road, and is entirely surrounded by trees, so that no one passing could see what was going on. Of course pickets were out to give the alarm, however, should any one be seen approaching.

THE LARGEST AND BEST.—Such of our exchanges as are published at points where Col. Ames' New Orleans Circus and Menagerie has already exhibited, unite in pronouncing it a most admirable and pleasing combination, and advise everybody who has the opportunity to be sure to attend. Read what the Harrisburg Patriot says about this grand exhibition, as given below, then read the column advertisement elsewhere and make up your mind to see a "show as is a show" in this place on Saturday, 11th inst.:

According to appointment, Ames' New Orleans Circus and Menagerie arrived in this city yesterday morning. The brilliant cavalcade, as it passed through the streets, was generally admired by our citizens. All along the route of procession the people flocked to witness the beautiful horses fine looking riders, the Lionesses in charge of Signorita Eugenie and the Royal Bengal Tiger, unchained, by the side of Herr Lengel; also the Ponies, Camels, Elephant, &c. In the afternoon and evening the pavillion, in which the exhibitions were given, was crowded to its utmost capacity. The performance was superb, and elicited the highest praise from those in attendance. The people of this city have rarely if ever had the privilege of witnessing a Circus and Menagerie that presented so many varied and interesting features as Ames' New Orleans. The equestrianship generally was excellant—in some instances marvelously brilliant. The acrobatic and athletic exercises excited the wonder and admiration of the spectators. The same might be said of all the performances. The Menagerie and Aviary are also important features of the exhibition. We are confident that wherever Ames' New Orleans circus and Menagerie exhibits the people attending will recover full satisfaction.

THE EBENSBURG CHORAL SOCIETY.—We are glad to learn that a number of our citizens have formed themselves into a Choral Union, and that they were fortunate enough to secure the services of Prof. Lewis (Llew Llwyvo) as teacher during the summer season. The rising term is now drawing to a close, and the Society have decided to give one public rehearsal, as our readers will see by referring to advertisement in another column. We anticipate a rare treat on the occasion, and hope that our fellow citizens will abundantly prove their appreciation of this excellent choir.

A TRUE FRIEND.—Our talented young friend, Geo. J. Akers, of Johnstown, has during the present week sent us the names of no less than thirteen new subscribers to the Freeman, and a portion of the money for the same. Mr. Akers is not yet a voter, but he is an earnest democrat and a most estimable young gentleman, and the example he has set in this particular is worthy the imitation of our earnest friends all over the county. Thank you sincerely, George, and may heaven ever bless and prosper you.

JAMES J. MURPHY.—Those of our readers who are not acquainted with Jas. J. Murphy, No. 109 Clinton street, Johnstown, should not put off the chance of an introduction. As sure as they find him out they will go home loaded down with coats, pants, vests, collars, hdkfs., umbrellas, and such like. James has a splendid assortment of made-up clothing which he will dispose of at low prices, more especially summer clothing.

THE BOYS.—We call them the boys, because they are not b'hoys, but clever young men carrying on a Dry Goods Store on their own hook. We mean Murphy & Co., Houston House, Main street, Johnstown. Them's them. They keep all kinds of dry goods and dress goods, fancy goods and notions, at low cash prices. They have a smile for every one, and before leaving every one has a smile for them. Reader, take a smile.

FAIRS.—Blair county intends sporting two Fairs this fall—one in Hollidaysburg and the other in Altoona—both at the same time. There is to be no Fair here, except the FAIR prices at which dry goods, clothing, groceries, etc., can all the time be bought from V. S. Barker, and that FAIR is open constantly day and evening.

JUST IN TIME.—An ingenious little machine that will pare, core and slice apples, and another that will pare peaches, can be seen and purchased at Huntley's mammoth house-furnishing emporium, where an endless variety of useful articles are constantly kept and always sold at the lowest prices.

GO IN.—If you want to buy anything from a cambric needle to the most elaborate piece of furniture, not forgetting the best flour in the market, you can always be accommodated at Shoemaker's cheap store, where trade is always brisk and bargains always guaranteed. Good goods at the lowest prices. Go in.

WHENEVER you need anything to clothe the body or feed the stomach, and want to get as much for your money as possible, be sure to buy from Fry, whose store is kept full stocked all the time, and whose prices are cheaper than the cheapest and his goods of the best quality. Give him your patronage.

DON'T!—Nobody should do what the telegraph will not do—pass R. R. Davis' store,—provided they want to do what the telegraph never will do—buy superb goods of every description at figures so near cost and carriage that no one can undersell him and not bust up.

Local Correspondence.

JOHNSTOWN, Aug. 30, 1869.

Dear Freeman—We were greatly pleased last week with our own local, and think if everybody else was pleased it would make a remarkable coincidence. The news this week, however, is very scarce, and we will fail this time sure.

A STORM.

The first thing we will mention is that a very black cloud arose in the west, on last Saturday at five o'clock, and thundered a terrible storm. We thought Covode and Geary must be both in that cloud, sure.—The majority of people were frightened, but it turned out, like all other black things, a grand humbug. It is true there was considerable rain in that cloud, and some wet fell, but there was little storm.

FUN.

The Marsh Minstrels played a piece here on Friday night and repeated it on Saturday night, but as we were not there either by invitatation or volition, and as we do not puff gratuitously, we know nothing of the result.

FEASTING.

The Welsh Congregationalists had a festival on the 30th ult., at their church in this place, the latest of the season. A blind man named Wheaton, held a concert in the M. E. church the same evening. The attendance was not so good as should be expected, however, yet it paid expenses.

BUILDINGS.

Our worthy Burgess is having built for his own use a neat brick mansion on Main street, near the centre of town. The building is to have all the modern appendages of fashionable dwellings. Nobody deserves better to live nice Mr. Fritz' house is progressing rapidly. There will be a bay window in front and one at the side. Hon. D. J. Morrell is also having two repertories, or bay windows, built in his residence—one at each end. We are so ignorant that we may not use these terms correctly, and hence we will explain. What we call a bay window is a semi-octagonal wing projecting from the main building, with windows in, generally used for rearing house flowers. This is at least as good a definition as the Irishman's description of a drum, which he said was "a little barrel wid leather ends, to rattle on, to call the men together."

TOWN COUNCIL.

From the proceedings of our Town Council at their last meeting it would appear that they can't see how the city got a thousand dollars' worth of water last year, when it did not get any. They voted 7 to 1 against allowing said company $1,000.

A NEW THING.

Our mutual friend, John J. Murphy, has bought the dry goods store of Mr. David Dibert, corner of Franklin and Main streets, and has rented the store room for a term of years. He has sent on for a large stock of new goods. Let it be understood that John J. Murphy is neither James J. Murphy nor Murphy & Co., but just our clever John J. Murphy. We wish John great success at the cheap corner.

CARPET BAGGERS.

But I am digressing. I must go back on local. Well, nothing more has been heard from the infanticide case, nor the carpet sack either, except that our worthy Coroner, Mr. Harrold, thinks that it is a sure sign that carpet baggers are coming north.

A MEAN THING.

We are astonished that the Radical Press is so mean as to underrate the abilities of Hon. Cyrus L. Pershing. We have traveled the State over, and have heard eminent lawyers arguing cases in the Supreme Court of this State and in the U. S. District Court, as well as the Courts of Westmoreland, Indiana, Dauphin, Allegheny, Somerset, and other counties, and we honestly think that there are not better lawyers in this State, anywhere, than either Mr. Pershing, Mr. Johnston, Mr. Kopelin, Mr. Reade, Mr. Potts or Mr. McLaughlin, all of our own bar. Some of these men are republicans and some are democrats, but all are talented men, and it is an act of consummate meanness to attempt to injure Mr. Pershing by such statements. We have also other brilliant young men rising at our bar of both parties, and God forbid that we should speak evil of them, belong to what party they may. We might speak slightingly of Mr. Williams, the republican candidate for the same office, but we cannot conscienciously do so. Both he and Mr. Pershing are sufficiently qualified for the office, and will not lose any in comparison with the other judges.

SCHOOLS.

County Supt. T. J. Chapman held an examination for four teachers, last Saturday, in Cambria borough. Johnstown, Millville, Conemaugh and Prospect boroughs all have their school teachers selected now for this year.

MAN KILLED.

John Myers, a single man, was killed on the Cambria Iron Company's railroad, near the Third Ward School House, on Saturday afternoon about five o'clock. The cinder train was backing down from Woodvale with workmen on board returning from their labor, and as a terrible storm was just commencing, it is supposed the train was running faster than usual, or the dust may have blown so as to blind the engineer. At any rate, from some cause the train ran off the track and Myers, who was acting as a brakeman, was thrown off, his left arm broken and his right side so bruised that he died in about one hour. He boarded at Joseph Shoemaker's, in Conemaugh borough, to which place he was carried. Coroner Harrold held an inquest over the body and the testimony showed the facts to be about the same as above stated. Mr. Myers had formerly been an engineer here, but left for California, where he had been for several years. He returned only about five months ago.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

A man named John Phillips was severely injured on Monday about ten o'clock on the Penna. railroad. He was rear brakeman on Pacific Express (a new line) going east, and while leaning from the car platform to look round the corner, his head struck a freight car, which resulted in his being knocked from the cars. He was carried to the Houston House, where three of his toes were amputated and his head dressed. He is on a fair way to recover.

THE TURF.

Quite a crowd was gathered on Saturday in the afternoon, at the race grounds, near Franklin borough, to witness a race between Dr. Emerson's mare and a horse belonging to Ed. Maldren. Meldren was to give 260 yards in a mile race, the best out of three times. The storm spoiled the race. Emerson's nag would have most undoubtedly beat, but there was no race, and the matter is still undecided.

A PIC-NIC.

There was a pic-nic at Woodvale on Saturday, held for the benefit of the Johnstown brass band. Things went on as merry as a marriage bell till the storm came on, at five o'clock, which spoiled the fun and concluded the exercises.

WILDCAT.

About a thousand barrels a day of wild cat water is used here by private families, besides what the Cambria Iron Company uses, which is a considerable amount to come from one wild-cat.

OTHER MATTERS.

Miss Sarah P. Kidder lectured on Monday evening in Union Hall, on the subject of "Soldiers' Orphans Schools," to a respectable audience.

There is an entire change of schedule on the Penna. R. R., but we are not yet informed of the particulars. The Company ought to advertise these changes of schedule, at least one week before they take place, in order that travelers may know when to meet the trains.

There was one or two cases of rowdyism before his Honor, Burgess Rose, on Saturday evening, but the persons implicated were let off with a reprimand. Hope the people will soon learn to behave themselves.

The weather has grown cooler, and people snifler no more from the oppressive heat of a tropical sun. ROB ROY.

CARROLLTOWN, August 30, 1869.

Dear Freeman—Our town again begins to assume its former lively aspect, as the husbandment have at length a breathing spell after the busy harvest season, just closed.—The advent of the bricklayers and their "clerks," who are at present employed at the Convent building, materially assists in enlivening our village.

A rather bold larceny was perpetrated at the residence of Henry Hopple, jr., in Carroll township, on Wednesday of last week. Two young men in a buggy drove up to the house, and one of them, alighting, entered and requested a little girl (the only occupant of the house at the time,) to give him a drink of water. The child complied by handing him a cup of water, and after drinking it the thief coolly appropriated a valuable silver watch which was hanging in the room, and cautioning the girl not to tell any person that she knew of it being taken, he departed. As soon as they were out of sight she ran to the field and informed Mr. H. of the transaction. Immediate pursuit was made, but the larcenist escaped. The next morning the watch was found in the vicinity of the wagon shed, and it is presumed that the party strongly suspected, brought it back during the night, fearing detection.

I understand our enterprising citizen, Mr. Wertner, designs erecting a large tannery contiguous to the new steam saw mill in this place. It will be fitted up with all the latest and most approved machinery, and will be propelled by the surplus steam from the mill engine.

Mr. Henry Blum brewer, has excavated a very extensive beer vault in the rear of his brewery. It is eighteen feet beneath the surface, and will be walled and arched with stone.

Our street commissioner has had a force of workmen engaged for several days past in making some much needed improvements to Main street.

Pierce's panorama of dissolving views was exhibted at Blum's Hall, an Thursday evening last. The entertainment was moral and highly interesting, and gave general satisfaction to all present.

Blackberries are unusually plenty in this neighborhood, yet they find a ready market at six cents and seven cents per quart.

There are a large number of persons in this town and adjoining townships who are not yet registered, and if they fail to attend to having their names put on their respective Register's lists before the ten days previous to the election, they will lose their votes. The lists are now posted in each election precinct, and should be examined by all interested.

The members of the Carrolltown brass band are practicing several new and pretty airs. Although not having quite the requisite number of instruments, their music is difficult to excel.

Our city fathers have contracted for the building of a lock-up near the public school house. The carpenters are now at work upon it, and it will be completed in a few days.

Mr. Albin Oswald, of this place, lost a valuable horse by death, on Saturday.

Your correspondent was made the recipient, a few days ago, of a large and luscious pear, weighing something less than a pound, which was enclosed in a box and sent through the P. O. The donor will accept thanks for the luscious gift.

We are compelled to abbreviate our letter this week. More anon. BUZ FUZ.

ALTOONA CITY, Aug. 30, 1869.

Dear Freeman—As the bigoted action of our School Board is being pretty well ventilated here at home, I forbear further allusion to the subject in your columns.

Local news is almost as scarce in our city just now as competent and impartial school directors.

The Altoona Hall and Market building is rapidly approaching completion, and when completed will be an ornament to our city and a safe, substantial and imposing edifice.

The new English Lutheran church was dedicated to divine service yesterday in the presence of an immense concourse of people. It is the best finished and handsomest religious edifice in the city.

Our Baptist friends worshipped on Sunday, for the first time, in the lecture room of their splendid new church.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Domenec will bless a magnificent bell for the use of the new convent in this city, Sunday, Sept. 19th. As it will be the first ceremony of the kind in this section, it will undoubtedly attract an immense assemblage of people. The splendid convent building will be open to visitors on that day.

Rev. James Dugan, pastor of the Church of God in this place, a young man of fine literary ability, died suddenly at his mother's residence in Philadelphia, on Thursday last.

David Benson, while adjusting the anvil of a steam hammer in one of the Company's shops, a few days ago, had one of his fingers taken off and another badly smashed.

William Lantz, a carpenter in the employ of the Company, cut an ugly gash in one of his legs, the other day, in consequence of a hand axe glanced from a piece of timber he was engaged in dressing.

A little son of Mr. James Young, while crossing the Yard here one day last week, was struck by a moving engine and had his head badly cut.

A young carpenter named Kirkpatrick, hailing from Lancaster, while changing the scaffolding on a new house he was working at, slipped and fell a distance of sixty-five feet, and was cut and bruised very severely, though not dangerously.

The kind greetings of your other local correspondents are cordially reciprocated. Hope to have the pleasure of taking each of them, as well as Mac himself, by the hand during the progress of our Fair, which is to be held Sept. 28th, 29th and 30th and Oct. 1st. What say you, boys? T. I. M.

THE EVENING HERALD.—The publishers of this spicy Philadelphia democratic daily has done us the kindness to place us on their exchange list, and our affection for the lively little journal is a clear case of love at first sight. Now that we receive it, the wonder with us is how we ever managed to get along without it. The Herald is only $3 per year to mail subscribers, and we consider it worth at least twice the sum. Send for it to C. F. Reinstein & Co., Philadelphia, and you cannot fail to be pleased with the investment.

THE MAGIC WINDMILL.—This curious and instructive toy is got up by Messrs. Wanamaker & Brown and given gratis to every boy who wears Oak Hall jackets and pants. Their establishment has become a great favorite with the children because of the "good clothes" sold there at prices so moderate that mothers can't help buying them. Get Johnny his new suit at Oak Hall this time, mother, and you will be better pleased and more economical than ever before—to say nothing of the "windmill."

MR. LEOPOLD MAYER—Dear Sir: We are beginning to look anxiously for another "Book of Sybil," or some other book which will tell us all about your cheap Dry Goods Store, Opera House, 214 Main street, Johnstown. What say you? You advertise very liberally generally. won't you give us another book on silks, satins, velvets, bonnets, hats, ribbons, dress goods, shawls, furs, etc.? Let us hear from you soon. MANY LADIES.

LEOPOLD & BROTHER.—This firm have just received some choice clothing at 241 Main Street, at their rooms known as Oak Hall. They are safe buyers and honest dealers. Their made-up clothing is all of their own manufacture, and they sell as low as the times will possibly admit. The sewing is good and the cloth warranted to be what it is represented. They are very kind and obliging salesmen and think it no trouble to show goods.

A striking feature in the display of the wild beasts will be the miraculous and incomprehensible familiarity exhibited by the ONLY LION QUEEN ON EARTH, SIGNORITA ELLA EUGENIE, and the renowned King among Lion Kings, HERR ELIJAH LENGEL, with the most ferocious and savage natured in the collection, whose dens they enter at each exhibition, and pet, fondle, or coerce the monsters at will, even carrying their temerity so far as to take them as companions loose and untrammeled through the streets, in the public procession of the Company on the morning of their advent—a novelty the world is challenged to equal. POETICAL EXTRACTS.

Oh, Absalom! my son! my son!
His fleece was white as snow;
He stole a pig and away he run
To the bay of Biscay, O.

The boy stood on the burning deck,
And smoked his pipe of clay.
And bet his money on a bob-tailed nag,
When the moon had gone away.

I'm lonely since my mother died—
The ice is round us still—
So I'll peel a bag of taters, O,
With the sword of Bunker Hill.

It is the hour when from the boughs
I kissed my Molly Ann,
So run, Elijah, and hurry up, Pomp!
Or any other man.

Oh what are the wild waves saying?
I cried the whole night through;
And a voice replied far up the height;
A little more cider, too.

The harp at nature's advent strung
Is coming through the rye!
Then kiss me quick and go, my honey,
Said the spider to the fly.

My Willie's on the dark, blue sea,
With five hundred thousand more,
And my days are gliding swiftly by
To the old Kentucky shore.

A RACE FOR LIFE ON A RAILROAD.

AN ENGINEER CHASED BY FIRE AT SEVENTY MILES AN HOUR—A THRILLING NARRATIVE.

Correspondence Grand Rapids (Mich.) Eagle.

* * * * To make it an intelligible matter to the reader, let me say that the Buffalo, Corry and Pittsburgh road intersects the Lake Shore road at this place.—The station at the junction is called Brocton. Now let it be understood that from this point to Mayville, at the head of Chautauqua Lake, a distance of only about ten miles, a train is carried over an elevation of 700 feet. From the station to the summit the grade is about 80 feet to the mile, with curves which increase the distance to four miles. It is over this road that the immense quantities of petroleum are brought.

On Tuesday evening about 9 o'clock, a train of six oil cars and two passenger cars reached the summit on its way to the Junction. Here, by some cause as yet unexplained, one of the oil tanks took fire. The passenger cars were at once detached and the brakes stopped them. Next the oil cars were cut off, and the locomotive, tender, and a box car containing two valuable horses and two men passed down the road, the engineer supposing that the brakemen on the oil cars would arrest the course of those, but what was his horror on looking back, to see the six cars in pursuit of him down the grade, enveloped in flames. They not only pursued but overtook him, knocking the horses and men flat upon the floor, and yet almost miraculously not throwing the engine from the track.

It was now with the engineer a race for life, and he gave the engine every ounce of steam. Looking south from the place of my residence at that terrible juncture, one of the most magnificent spectacles was witnessed that a man sees in a lifetime. A sheet of intensely bright flame, sixty feet high, was seen coming down the southern slope, apparently with the speed of a meteor, and really very nearly the speed of a hurricane (eighty miles an hour,) for pursued and pursuer flew over the course, or rather down it, and around the curves, at the rate of more than seventy miles an hour, as the engineer declares, and as everybody can believe who witnessed the spectacle. The whole heavens were illuminated, and the landscape way lit up as by the noonday light. Onward and downward flew the engine, and behind it flew and thundered the huge fiery demon. Twice its prodigious weight was driven against the fugitive, as if instinct with a purpose to drive it from the track. It seemed as if to the heroic engineer and fireman there was a perfect environment of peril. The speed of the engine was such that it ceased to pump; then again, the Cincinnati express was due at the Junction at this time. The engineer of the oil train whistled "open switch," and shaking hands with the fireman, they bade each other farewell, knowing that their lives depended on the opening of the Lake Shore switch by their friends below, and this was to imperil the express train coming down from the West with its living human freight. The engineer on this train saw the fire when it first broke out at the summit, and supposing he could clear the junction, before the flaming terror reached it, he, too, put his engine to the utmost speed on a level grade. A mile short of the junction he saw that the effort was a vain one, for the living conflagration had rushed out upon the Lake Shore track, and was roaring onward in the direction of Dunkirk. He checked the onward course of his train, and brought it to a stand-still. It did not proceed until 3 o'clock in the morning.

The case took in another danger, and it was imminent. A heavy freight train was coming up the Lake Shore road. All I will say of the escape of this is that it did escape to the side track, and only escaped by the last moment of possibility.

Running on to a safe distance from the depot, the engineer of the oil train detached his engine and left the six cars to consume. He says his situation was fully realized by him. He expected to lose his life. At every moment he expected the engine to leave the track. He saw he was going at a perilous rate of speed, but there was no help for it. The demon was behind him, and he declares that it looked like a demon. With that fondness of real affection for his engine, which these men display, he said "I thought everything of my engine, and was determined to stay by it to the last." The fireman made one attempt to escape by jumping from the tender, but the engineer restrained him. Altogether the occurrence was a remarkable one, and in part remarkable for this, that no lives were lost. The brakemen on the oil cars had gone back to the passenger cars, when the oil cars started. It was well they did. Unless those rear cars had been detached and stopped, their inmates would have been burned to death.

ILLEGAL HUSBANDRY—Beating a wife.

A STORY OF A PHYSICIAN.—An eminent physician in "Hearth and Home" contributes the following exquisite article for the benefit of young mothers. He says: An intelligent young mother inquired some days since how she could best preserve her child's linen clean and sweet when changed frequently through the day. I directed her never to dry it by the fire, but in the sun and open air if the weather permitted.

You thus not only avoid saturating the air of your rooms with the volatile and poisonous gases driven out of the linen, but the sun's rays have powers of cleansing and disinfecting which artificial heat has not and will purify and preserve the linen She folowed my direction, but as is too often the practice, dried and aired it in the nursery window. Her fastidious husband remonstrated in vain against this unseemly exposure. Believing that if she saw her practice as others saw it, she would desist, he so directed their afternoon walk as to bring the nursery window into full view from a central part of the town.

Stepping abruptly, he pointed to the offending linen flapping conspicuously in the breeze, and asked sarcastically: "My dear, what is that displayed from our window?" "Why," she proudly replied, "that is the flag of our Union!" Conquered by this pungent retort, he saluted the flag with a swing of his hat, and pressing his wife's arm close within his own, said as they walked homeward, "And long may it wave."

STRANGE COINCIDENCE.—The Syracuse Courier tells of a singular coincidence which happened in the family of a respectable citizen of that city. The birth of a little child occurred some nine months since. Its mother was ill at the time of consumption. Since the child came into the world it has followed the physical condition of its mother with marvelous precision. Would she be taken with vomiting, the child would be afflicted in the same manner; did her health improve for a few weeks, marked improvement was noticed in the child; when her health declined, the child's would also begin to decline at nearly the same time. A short time since the mother was taken much worse; the symptoms of the child were of a similar character. Finally the mother died, and only a few seconds after breathing her last, the child followed her into eternity. The case is a strange one, showing the great influence unconscious sympathy may exert over physical conditions.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,
AND
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,
Prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, Philadelphia.
Their introduction into this country from Germany occurred in 1825.
THEY CURED YOUR FATHERS AND MOTHERS,
And will cure you and your children. They are entirely different from the many preparations now in the country called Bitters or Tonics. They are no tavern preparation, or anything like one; but good, honest, reliable medicines. They are
The greatest known remedies for Liver Complaint,
DYSPEPSIA,
Nervous Debility,
JAUNDICE,
Diseases of the Kidneys,
ERUPTIONS OF THE SKIN,
and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach, or IMPURITY OF THE BLOOD.
Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fullness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil and Great Depression of Spirits.
All these indicate disease of the Liver or Digestive Organs, combined with impure blood.
Hoofland's German Bitters
is entirely vegetable, and contains no liquor. It is a compound of Fluid Extracts. The Roots, Herbs, and Barks from which these extracts are made are gathered in Germany. All the medicinal virtues are extracted from them by a scientific chemist. These extracts are then forwarded to this country to be used expressly for the manufacture of these Bitters. There is no alcoholic substance of any kind used in compounding the Bitters, hence it is the only Bitters that can be used in cases where alcoholic stimulants are not advisable.
Hoofland's German Tonic
is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with pure Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, etc. It is used for the same diseases as the Bitters, in cases where some pure alcoholic stimulus is required. You will bear in mind that these remedies are entirely different from any others advertised for the cure of the diseases named, these being scientific preparations of medicinal extracts, while the others are mere decoctions of rum in some form. The TONIC is decidedly one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public. Its taste is exquisite. It is a pleasure to take it, while its life-giving, exhilarating, and medicinal qualities have caused it to be known as the greatest of all tonics.
DEBILITY.
There is no medicine equal to Hoofland's German Bitters or Tonic in cases of Debility. They impart a tone and vigor to the whole system, strengthen the appetite, cause an enjoyment of the food, enable the stomach to digest it, purify the blood, give a good, sound, healthy complexion, eradicate the yellow tinge from the eye, impart a bloom to the cheeks, and change the patient from a short-breathed, emaciated, weak, and nervous invalid, to a full-faced, stout, and vigorous person.
Weak and Delicate Children are made strong by using the Bitters or Tonic. In fact, they are Family Medicines. They can be administered with perfect safety to a child three months old, the most delicate female, or a man of ninety.
These Remedies are the best Blood Purifiers
ever known, and will cure all diseases resulting from bad blood. Keep your blood pure; keep your Liver in order; keep your digestive organs in a sound, healthy condition, by the use of these remedies, and no disease will ever assail you. The best men in the country recommend them. If years of honest reputation go for anything, you must try these preparations.
FROM HON. GEO. W. WOODWARD,
Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.
PHILADELPHIA, March 16, 1867.
I find "Hoofland's German Bitters" is not an intoxicating beverage, but is a good tonic, useful in disorders of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility and want of nervous action, in the system.
Yours truly,
GEO. W. WOODWARD.
FROM HON. JAMES THOMPSON,
Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.
PHILADELPHIA, April 28, 1866.
I consider "Hoofland's German Bitters" a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it. Yours, with respect,
JAMES THOMPSON.
FROM REV. JOSEPH H. KENNARD, D.D.,
Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.
DR. JACKSON—DEAR SIR:—I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in various instances, and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual course, to express my full conviction that for general debility of the system and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.
Yours, very respectfully,
J. H. KENNARD,
Eighth, below Coates St.
CAUTION.

Price of the Bitters, $1 00 per bottle; Or, a half dozen for $5 00.
Price of the Tonic, $1 50 per bottle; Or, a half dozen for $7 50.
The tonic is put up in quart bottles.
Recollect that it is Dr. Hoofland's German Remedies that are so universally used and so highly recommended; and do not allow the Druggist to induce you to take anything else that he may say is just as good, because he makes a larger profit on it. These Remedies will be sent by express to any locality upon application to the
